ABOUT

I am a blogger and social media manager residing in Central Indiana. I started Cornfields & High Heels in the summer of 2017 as a food blog that has slowly evolved into a combined food, travel, and family blog. Before becoming a blogger I was a social worker, but these days you will find me adventuring through the Midwest, scouting out the best coffee, date nights, and thrifty finds!

I have a passion for baking, photography, and travel - and a heart for family, ministry, and volunteering - I pour these subjects into my writing. My most important role is at home as a mom, stepmom, and pastor's wife - where managing a blended family, homeschooling, sports, teenagers, and a DIY home restoration has become an adventure of its own!
